

RASPBERRIES

Raspberries are divided into 2 classes by fruit bearing habit:

JUNE-BEARING: Bears fruit in early summer on 2 year old canes.

EVERBEARING: Bears fruit on ends of canes late in first season; and laterally on same canes early in second season.

VARIETIES for 2017

AMITY	Everbearing. A “classic raspberry” flavor. Medium-large, firm, dark red berries. Excellent for fresh eating, freezing and canning. Root-rot resistant. Self supporting canes. Ripens early September. Zone 3.
BOYNE	June bearing. Medium sized, tender, juicy, dark red and sweet berries. Very productive, strong canes. Ripens early-mid season.
CANBY	June bearing. THORNLESS!! Large, firm, juicy berry. Great all purpose fruit.
CAROLINE	Everbearing. One of the largest, with strong raspberry flavor. Caroline also has higher nutrient levels than other raspberries.
FALL GOLD	Everbearing, with large, sweet, golden berries late summer to fall. Great for fresh eating and processing. Tolerates a wide variety of soils.
HERITAGE	Everbearing. Large, sweet, dark red berries with a mild flavor for all purposes. Self-supporting canes. Tolerant of heavier soils. Spreads rapidly. Small July crop, superior fall crop from September until frost.
INDIAN SUMMER	Everbearing. Large, bright red clusters of unusually sweet, aromatic berries. All purpose. One of the earliest to ripen in mid-June and often a larger 2nd crop in September.
JEWELL	June bearing, with dense clusters of large berries. Extremely vigorous and disease resistant, heavy producer, great for pies and jam.
LATHAM	June bearing. Extremely popular. Large to very large, deep red fruits. Wonderful texture, full flavored berries. Strong, highly productive canes 4-5 feet tall. Disease resistant. Ripens for 3 weeks in late June and early July.
NEWBURGH	June bearing. Lower growing variety with very nice quality berries. Especially good for jelly and freezing. Heavy producer that tolerates heavy, wet soils fairly well. Ripens a bit before Latham.
RASPBERRY SHORTCAKE	June bearing. Compact, dwarf variety perfect for containers and small spaces at 2-3’ tall and wide. THORNLESS and practically carefree.
ROYALTY	June bearing. Large, firm, round, very sweet, medium, purple fruit. Good picked red but develops sweeter flavor when fully ripe and purple. Vigorous and productive. Ripens late.
SEPTEMBER	Everbearing. Medium to large fruit. Sweet, juicy with a bit of tartness. High quality, best used fresh or frozen. Vigorous, productive canes grow to medium height.
WILLAMETTE	June bearing. Very large, firm, deep red fruit with well-rounded, tart flavor. Quite vigorous, tall growing, disease resistant, heavy bearing west coast favorite.
