

STRAWBERRIES

Strawberries are divided into 2 classes by fruit bearing habit:

JUNE-BEARING: Produces one heavy crop in late spring/early summer. Excellent flavor, preferred for preserves or freezing since they produce heavy quantities at one time.

DAY NEUTRAL/EVERBEARING: Day neutral means that the plant is not affected by the length of the day. Produces fruit summer through fall, but not heavily at any one time. Flavor is excellent; great for eating fresh. These are best for container plantings.

VARIETIES for 2017

ALBION	Everbearing. An outstanding variety from the University of California, Albion combines superior flavor and intense red coloring all the way through with good resistance to verticillium wilt and crown rots.
AROMAS	Everbearing. Flavorful, large, dark-red berries. Very high yields. Disease resistant. Considered by many to be the best everbearing cultivar.
BENTON	June bearing. Very large, good flavored berry with excellent keeping quality. Ideal for fresh eating. Virus tolerant.
EARLIGLOW	June bearing. Firm, med-large, deep red, glossy fruit with exceptional flavor on vigorous, disease resistant plants.
EVERSWEET	Everbearing. Amazingly productive! Exceptionally sweet, large berries have a delectable flavor reminiscent of heirloom varieties. A truly outstanding performer, its production surpasses that of any other cultivated strawberry!
FORT LARAMIE	Everbearing. Very large berries with firm, sweet flesh great for fresh eating, freezing, and preserves. Vigorous, self-fertile variety produces lots of runners.
HOOD	June bearing. Very large, glossy dark red fruit. High quality, sweet flavor. Excellent for processing and good for other uses. Very productive. Resistant to root rot and mildew.
PUGET RELIANCE	June bearing. PNW variety! Similar to Hood with large, soft fruit on vigorous, disease resistant plants. Exceptionally adaptable.
QUINAULT	Everbearing. Very large, tasty, soft berries. Good for fresh eating, desserts, and freezing. High yielding. Produces many runners. Resistant to root rot and leaf spot, but susceptible to mildew.
RAINIER	June bearing. Large fruit with a high quality, fine flavor. Excellent for fresh eating and processing. Very virus tolerant, and vigorous.
SEASCAPE	Everbearing. Large berry with outstanding, very sweet flavor and excellent color. Wonderful for fresh eating.
TOTEM	June bearing. Extra hardy, disease resistant variety bears high yields of uniform, bright red berries. Early ripening.
